Chester Standard. HORRIBLE BRUTALITY AT BUENOS AYRES .- A letler from Buenos Ayres, in the New York Times, relates some instances of horried cruelty perpetrated by Gen. Urquiza, previous to his flight. One instance was that of Donna Martina Pando, wife of D. Marino Romar, who wrote a letter to an officer named Capaco advising him to leave the ranks of Urquiza and join those of the legal Government. Capaco, who had been fed and clothed by the lady, when he was in great poverty, pretended to favor her wishes, but at the first opportunity betrayed her to Urquiza, who ordered her instant arrest, and sentenced her to receive 300 lashes, and proceeded, in person, accompanied by Lagos, his colleague, to see the sentence executed. The victim was led out, stripped entirely of her clothing, and placed in the midst of the squadron of soldiers assigned to inflict the punishment. The cries and agony of the wretched woman, at an exposure so much more horrible to her than death itself, had no effect upon her heartless executioners. Before the stripes were one fourth inflicted she had fainted from pain and loss of blood, and shortly after he was apprized that the sufferings of the poor wretch were terninated. She was dead. With an excess of humanity which is almost incredible, the monster ordered the remaining number of stripes to be inflicted upon the corps and finally left the spot, forbidding the remo-

All these presenting a surface extent of upwards of 690,000 square miles, and comprising a population which has been taken at 52,000,000 of souls, are for every practical purpose, at the absolute disposal of the British government. Some of them are connected with it by subsidiary treaties: that is to say, they supply funds for the maintenance of a given number of troops, which the British government disciplines and officers; others pay tribute, and undertake, in case of war, to swell our army with contingents, of which the strength is fixed; while the residue, accepting our protection, hold themselves bound, when called upon, to co-operate word, England has become far more extensively han could have been predicated of the most powerful about 400,000 armed men - National Democrat.
